

Thirteen-Year-Old Warwick Resident Writes Best-Selling Book on Amazon

For immediate release

March 15, 2024 - Warwick, Rhode Island, USA – While most thirteen-year-old kids are looking at Instagram, Snapchat, and TikTok, Nicholas Bramble has been imagining a new beginning to a run-down mountain resort. His thoughts and ideas have helped him create a new children’s adventure book which has just debuted as a Best “new release” on Amazon. The new book, called Adventures at Bramble Woods is a ninety-nine-page hard-cover chapter book designed, illustrated, and written by a thirteen-year-old honor student.

Inspired by the Lighthouse Inn, in Narragansett, Rhode Island, and the hotels and mountains in New Hampshire, the debut book is a suspenseful adventure to re-imagine a long-forgotten hotel and bring it back to its better days. Nicholas says, “When I see an abandoned building, I think about what it once was, and, what it could be. So, I imagine what I would do with it if I owned the buildings, which included writing my thoughts on pieces of paper, and my IPAD.” In between the writing, Nicholas used his experience as a talented artist to draw illustrations for the book. After two years of writing, scanning, drawing, learning, and pondering how to get the book done, he finally completed the book, and self-published it on Amazon.

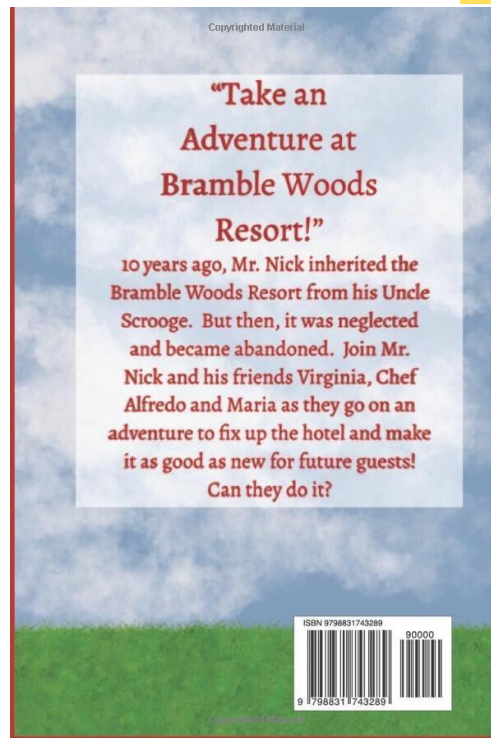

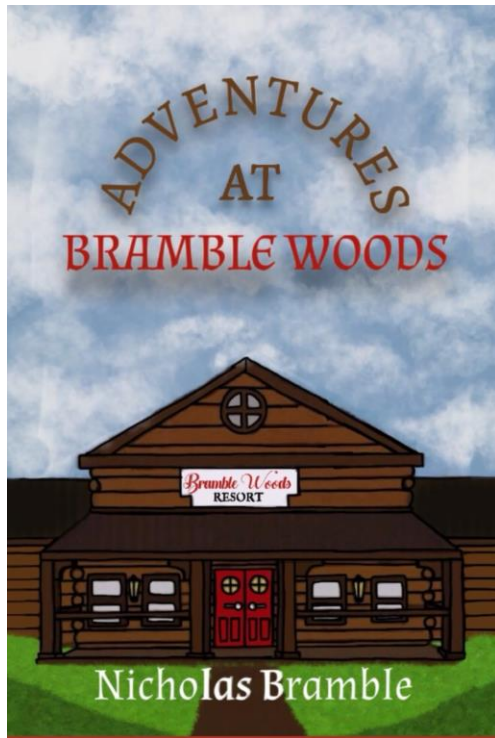

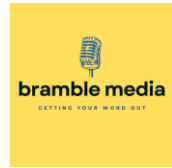

The book takes you on a journey through mountain’s and an old hotel with the hopes of bringing a neglected hotel back to life. The characters in the book work together in the hopes they can get the hotel renovated with the little funds they have on hand. In the end, there’s a treasure hunt that leaves everyone with a big surprise. Nicholas says, “I had lots of fun creating characters out of people I knew, and that included adding my Mom & Dad, Aunts and Uncles, my dog, and even Great Grandparents into the mystery. I hope many kids find it fun and suspenseful.”
